Hi Kenny

We heard back from the Commission recently but in their response they didn't give any opinion on the derogation request unfortunately. The ball is back in our court so we need to go back to them with a further update basically reiterating our previous points. This update will go to the Commission early February.

So in a nutshell we're no further forward but this should in no way impact on Whiteshore's proposals and I've stressed that point to [REDACTED] – proceed as before and as if the Commission is content with what is proposed until we get a definite steer.

Hope this is helpful and if we hear anything further I will of course be in touch.

Hi Ian and HNY

Sorry to bother you with this but I don't have the details of the person filling your old post although I'm sure you told me who it was!!

I was wondering, from our enforcement hat on, what's happening with Whiteshores derogation request? I suspect they are still using that site for burying morts.

Could you forward this on to the person who deals with this now and, again, sorry to have bothered you Kenny

Despite the delay there's good news – we've now had confirmation from the European Commission that they are satisfied with the derogation measures as proposed. Whilst there are no planned DG Health and Food Safety missions to the UK looking at animal by-products on the immediate horizon, they may of course choose to revisit this for inspection purposes at some point further down the line. That's a big if but in the meantime you have the green light nonetheless.

Best wishes

Hi Ian,

Hope life is treating you well. First signs here of the day stretching so thoughts of spring are cheering us up after some horrific weather.

[REDACTED] have asked me to send them a letter updating them on the derogation / extension and I am just checking if there is any further update on a possible date for the extension to be granted.

We hope to have approval from HIE next week regarding grant funding and get all the equipment ordered so our timescale of operations would appear to be still on track.

Best regards

Hi [REDACTED]

Thanks for the update and that the timeline for progressing the works remains on track to be fully operational by the end of the year. In terms of the implications of the EU Referendum it is still business as usual and this is the usual SG line – “the UK remains a full member of the European Union until Art. 50 negotiations conclude, and therefore currently remains subject to all responsibilities and obligations of membership.”

Appreciate that Brexit may change things but it really is too soon to speculate at this stage.

Thanks for the update and we'll keep in touch.

Hi Iain

Good to hear from you.

We are starting the infrastructure work next week and hope to get the drier order finalised before the end of the month. We are waiting for confirmation from [REDACTED] that they want us to process their Category 2 waste as well as the morts so we can get the disinfection equipment finalised. I am keeping in touch with Vivien Taylor but things are almost there.

We have told all the fish farms that our deadline to be fully operational is the end of the year.

In England at the moment but will keep you updated, Does Brexit affect anything ?

Thanks Ian that's a relief.

Just on the point of working out a timescale for everything (lots of infrastructure to be done before we even get the drier) but we are hoping to have everything in place by end of September and fully operational by the end of the year.

Thanks again for your help.
