

Consultation response:

A Public Consultation on Recommendations for No-Fault Compensation in Scotland for Injuries Resulting from Clinical Treatment

No-Fault Compensation in Scotland for Injuries Resulting from Clinical Treatment

1. The research team supporting the review reported (Farrell et al, 2010¹) that previous research suggests that when an error has occurred, patients expect doctors to make a meaningful apology, provide an explanation and take steps to prevent the error from recurring. The findings of their research would appear to support the contention that for many, if not most, patients this is the primary aim, rather than a financial award.
2. The Scottish Public Services Ombudsman (SPSO) has published advice in relation to apology². This advice was referenced in the guidance issued to NHSScotland in March 2012 on the handling and learning from feedback, comments, concerns and complaints.

Question 1:What, if any, steps do you feel are necessary or appropriate to ensure that when an error has occurred, patients receive a meaningful apology?

All SPSO advice in relation to apology should be followed.

3. The Review Group considered that the following were essential criteria for a compensation scheme for injuries resulting from medical treatment:

- The scheme provides an appropriate level of compensation to the patient, their family or carers
- The scheme is compatible with the European Convention on Human Rights
- The scheme is easy to access and use, without unnecessary barriers, for example created by cost or the difficulty of getting advice or support
- People are able to get the relevant specialist advice in using the scheme;
- Decisions about compensation are timely
- People who have used the scheme feel that they have been treated equitably

²http://www.spso.org.uk/files/2011_March_SPSO%20Guidance%20on%20Apology.pdf

- The scheme is affordable
- The scheme makes proportionate use of time and resources
- The scheme has an appropriate balance between costs of administration (e.g. financial or time) and the level of compensation awarded
- Decisions about compensation are made through a robust and independent process
- The scheme has an independent appeal system
- The scheme treats staff and patients fairly/equitably
- A reasonable time limit is set for compensation claims.

Question 2. Do you agree that the principles and criteria set out above are essential in a compensation system?

Yes No

2.1 Are there any to which you would attach particular priority or importance? Are there any others you would add?

We believe that it is important to prioritise ensuring the scheme is easy to access and use, without unnecessary barriers, for anyone using the scheme.

4. The Review Group identified a number of issues it believed were relevant to the likely success of any system and agreed that the following criteria were desirable, and considered and highlighted the importance of the wider issues detailed below:

Desirable

- The public in general trusts the scheme to deliver a fair outcome
- The scheme does not prevent patients from seeking other forms of non-financial redress, including through the NHS Complaints system
- The scheme encourages transparency in clinical decision-making
- The scheme contributes to rehabilitation and recovery.

Question 3: Do you agree that these criteria are desirable in a compensation system?

Yes No

3.1 Are there any others you think are desirable and should be included?

Wider issues

- The scheme contributes to:
 - organisational, local and national learning
 - patient safety
 - quality improvement
- Lessons learned can be used to influence organisational risk management in the future
- The scheme encourages and supports safe disclosure of adverse events
- The scheme does not put barriers in place for referral to regulators of any cases which raise grounds for concern about professional misconduct or fitness to practise.

Question 4: Do you have views or ideas on how a compensation scheme could more effectively contribute to the wider issues identified above?

The scheme should provide an opportunity for dialogue about how services could be improved.

The scheme should also link patients who raise claims with further opportunities to engage with the hospital including patient councils and other forums including collective advocacy groups.

5. When considered the Review Group's suggested essential principles and criteria against other schemes and the Swedish model came out on top. Based on this the Review Group offered:

Recommendation 1 - that consideration be given to the establishment of a no-fault scheme for medical injury, along the lines of the Swedish model, bearing in mind that no-fault schemes work best in tandem with adequate social welfare provision.

Question 5: Based on the background information on the system in operation in Sweden given in Annex A would you support the approach suggested in Recommendation 1?

Yes

Recommendation 2 - that eligibility for compensation should not be based on the 'avoidability' test as used in Sweden, but rather on a clear description of which injuries are not eligible for compensation under the no-fault scheme.

Question 6: Would you support the approach in Recommendation 2? This would mean for example that where treatment carries a known risk and the patient has given consent to that treatment it would not be eligible.

Yes No

We do however believe that, people with a mental disorder should be offered access to independent advocacy to ensure that, were a patient required to give consent to a procedure, they understand the issues and are supported to make an informed choice.

If yes, what other injuries would you consider should not be eligible?

6. The Review Group was of the view that any recommended changes to a no-fault system should cover all healthcare professionals including those not directly employed by the National Health Service. The group believed that fairness dictated that all patients whether treated by the NHS or privately should have access to an improved system if possible. If this proved impossible, the group nonetheless believed that there were benefits that could be obtained by a move to no-fault for NHS patients. The group's preference was that all patients should be covered by the no-fault scheme and offered:

Recommendation 3 - that the no-fault scheme should cover all medical treatment injuries that occur in Scotland; (injuries can be caused, for example, by the treatment itself or by a failure to treat, as well as by faulty equipment, in which case there may be third party liability)

Recommendation 4 - that the scheme should extend to all registered healthcare professionals in Scotland, and not simply to those employed by NHSScotland.

(As explained in the Cabinet Secretary's foreword we acknowledge that further work is needed to help in our understanding of the volume, level and cost of compensation claims handled by the Medical Defence Unions and private healthcare providers. We will seek to explore this further with the relevant stakeholders during the consultation period.)

Question 7: Do you support the view that, if introduced, a no-fault scheme should cover all clinical treatment injuries (e.g. private healthcare and independent contractors) and all registered healthcare professionals and not just those directly employed by NHSScotland?

Yes No

If not, why not?

7.1 What, if any, difficulties do you foresee in including independent contractors (such as GPs, dentist etc) and private practice?

No comment

7.2 What are your views on how a scheme could be designed to address these issues?

No comment

Question 8: The intention is that if introduced the no-fault system will not be retrospective. However, consideration will need to be given to when and how we could transfer to a new system and how outstanding claims could be handled if/when a no-fault system was introduced. What are your views on how outstanding claims might be handled?

No Comment

7. The Review Group did not favour the use of a tariff system for compensation, as it felt that this would not address individual needs and it was unlikely that people would buy into a system where compensation was based on a tariff. The group therefore offered:

Recommendation 5 - that any compensation awarded should be based on need rather than on a tariff based system;

Question 9: Do you support the approach in Recommendation 5?

Yes No

If not, why not?

9.1 What are your views on the assumption that the level of payments will be similar to those settled under the current system?

No comment

8. The Review Group was satisfied that a no-fault scheme established as they describe would be fully compatible with the requirements of the European Convention of Human Rights, based in particular on the need – as in Sweden and New Zealand – to build in appropriate appeals mechanisms, with an ultimate right to appeal to the courts on a point of fact or law. In addition, retention of the right to litigate will ensure that those for whom the no-fault system is felt to be inappropriate will still be able to raise claims using this route. The group recommended:

Recommendation 6 - that claimants who fail under the no-fault scheme should retain the right to litigate, based on an improved litigation system

Recommendation 7 - that a claimant who fails in litigation should have a residual right to claim under the no-fault scheme

Recommendation 8 - that, should a claimant be successful under the no-fault scheme, any financial award made should be deducted from any award subsequently made as a result of litigation

Recommendation 9 - that appeal from the adjudication of the no-fault scheme should be available to a court of law on a point of law or fact.

Question 10: Do you support recommendations 6 – 9 as proposed by the Review Group?

Yes No

If no, why not?

10.1 Do you have any concerns that the Review Group's recommendations may not be fully compatible with the European Convention of Human Rights?

Yes No

If yes, what are your concerns?

9. The Review Group offered suggestions for improvement to the existing system and these are reproduced in Annex B. The group recommended:

Recommendation 10 - that consideration should be given to our analysis of the problems in the current system, so that those who decide to litigate can benefit from them.

10. It is proposed that the suggested improvements will be taken forward as part of the forthcoming consultation on the Courts Reform Bill later this year by the Scottish Government Justice Directorate. In particular the Scottish Civil Courts Review³ recommended that pre-action protocols should be made compulsory and it is considered that this would assist in resolving many of the areas identified by the Review Group. In addition, Sheriff Principle Taylor's Review of Expenses and Funding of Civil Litigation in Scotland⁴, which is due to report at the end of the year will consider a range of issues.

Question 11: Do you agree with the Review Group's suggestions for improvements to the existing system?

Yes No

11.1 Do you have any comments on the proposed action in relation to these suggestions?

11. The Review Group also considered whether or not the establishment of a scheme specific to neurologically impaired infants should be created (in the event that a general no-fault scheme is not introduced). Members considered that this group of patients arguably represents a special case and certainly accounts for the most significant sums awarded in compensation and legal costs. The Group were of the view that this was worthy of consideration.

Question 12: Would you support the establishment of a scheme specific to neurologically impaired infants if a general no-fault scheme is not introduced?

Yes No

12.1 What are your views on the Review Group's suggestion that the future care component of any compensation in such cases could be provided in the form of a guarantee of delivery of services (both medical and social care) to meet the needs of the child, instead of by way of a monetary sum?

This should not be an automatic decision. People should be supported to understand what is offered/available, the possible outcomes and make informed choices.

General Comments

We believe that, when considering this scheme, patients should be informed about independent advocacy and have access to this if they wish it. Advocacy can provide support to consider issues, to make informed choices and help ensure the patient's voice is heard. Any future legislation on this should include the right of access to independent advocacy for those making a claim under this scheme.

We would welcome any further general comments you may wish to offer here.

About the Scottish Independent Advocacy Alliance

The Scottish Independent Advocacy Alliance (SIAA) is a membership organisation which promotes, supports and defends Independent Advocacy in Scotland. It aims to ensure that Independent Advocacy is available to any vulnerable person in Scotland.

The right to Independent Advocacy for those with mental disorders or who are potentially at risk is enshrined in Scottish legislation. However, Independent Advocacy can also have a key part to play in supporting other vulnerable groups such as black and minority ethnic groups and people with problem drug and/or alcohol use, amongst others.

Independent Advocacy organisations do not provide any services other than advocacy. They are separate organisations in their own right, are financially independent, and all those employed in an Independent Advocacy organisation know that they are only limited in what they do by the principles of advocacy, resources and the law. This ensures they are able to assist vulnerable individuals whilst being as free as possible from any conflicts of interest.
