Question 2: Please choose your preferred option (Chapter 2 provides details).

- Option 1 – a centre of excellence in a single location
- Option 2 – a service delivered by local chronic pain clinicians
(supported by other clinical advisors in another part of the country)
- Option 3 – a service delivered in different locations
(by a team of chronic pain specialists – an outreach or roving service)

Please tell us why this is your preferred option in the comments box below. The factors listed in Chapter 2 of the consultation paper may help you.

Comments (box expands with text input - there is no word limit) It is my belief that a centre of excellence in a single location with a permanent highly trained and dedicated staff would be more likely to provide a higher standard of treatment and care for chronic pain sufferers.

Question 3: Are there any of the options you disagree with? (If No, move straight to Question 4.)

If yes, please tell us which one(s) in the comments box, and why?

Question 5: What do you think the barriers are to accessing a residential pain management service? (For example, distance away from family, work or family commitments, upfront travel costs.)

Please list as many as you wish in the comments box below and include any others that are important to you.

Comments (box expands with text input - there is no word limit)The examples listed, distance away from home, work or family commitments and upfront travel costs are all genuine barriers to accessing a residential pain management service. Another important point could be the availability, or lack of, suitable transport from outlying areas for chronic pain sufferers.

My mother, now deceased, when 96 suffered a broken arm, broken humerus and two broken bones in her leg from a bad fall and the journey to hospital, even in the ambulance was an ordeal on our pothole strewn roads.

Question 6: Please choose from the list below which aspects of residential pain management services should be included in a Scottish service.

(choose as many as apply)
