

Response from Ayrshire Independent Living Network as a support organisation.

After listening to the concerns of our clients, along with their hopes of an independent Scottish ILF, Ayrshire Independent Living Network (Ailn) would concur with the responses expressed by them and others that attended the ILF consultation hosted by us.

The responses, to the questions raised in the consultation document, were well thought through. There was a clear focus on what would be best for them to live as independently as possible

There was a suggestion from one respondent who could not make the consultation itself, but expressed a wish that ILF should be administered by the Ayrshire Independent Living Network. This was because, to paraphrase, "the excellent service and support that is provided by us to them."

We gratefully accept the praise of our services but unfortunately we do not have the capacity to carry out the administration of ILF.
