Consultation Paper

Introduction

The Public Bodies (Joint Working) (Scotland) Act 2014 provides a framework to support improvements in the quality and consistency of health and social care services through the integration of health and social care in Scotland.

The policy rationale for integrating health and social care services is: to improve the quality and consistency of services for patients, carers, service users and their families; to provide seamless, joined up, high quality health and social care services in order to care for people in their homes, or a homely setting, where it is safe to do so; and to ensure resources are used effectively and efficiently to deliver services that meet the needs of the increasing number of people with longer term and often complex needs, many of whom are older.

Set one of the draft Regulations relating to The Public Bodies (Joint Working) (Scotland) Act 2014 are within this consultation. Their purposes are:

1. Prescribed information to be included in the Integration Scheme

   Section 1(3)(f) of the Public Bodies (Joint Working) (Scotland) Act 2014

   The Integration Scheme is a document to be prepared in respect of each Local Authority area, by the Local Authority and the relevant Health Board. It sets out models of integration that the Health Board and Local Authority have opted to use in practice. It contains the key agreements that have been made between Health Boards and Local Authorities to make integration a success and describes the necessary processes and procedures that will be put in place.

   Section 1(2) of the Public Bodies (Joint Working) (Scotland) Act 2014 together with sections 2(3) and 2(4), which make provision for the case where there is more than one Local Authority within a Health Board area, requires that Health Boards and Local Authorities prepare an Integration Scheme.

   Section 1(3)(a-e) of the Public Bodies (Joint Working) (Scotland) Act 2014 sets out the key information that must be included in the Integration Scheme, such as the scope of the functions delegated, the resources delegated and the model of integration chosen.

   These Regulations sets out the other matters that Scottish Ministers intend to prescribe for inclusion in the Integration Scheme, and information about these matters, which Health Boards and Local Authorities must provide. They include provisions about the following matters:
Local governance arrangements
Local operational arrangements
Clinical and care governance
Workforce
Finance
Claims management and indemnity arrangements
Dispute resolution
Stakeholder and public engagement
Complaints
Data sharing
Risk management

2. Prescribed functions that must be delegated by Local Authorities
Section 1(7) of the Public Bodies (Joint Working) (Scotland) Act 2014

The policy intention set out within the Public Bodies (Joint Working) (Scotland) Act 2014 is to achieve the integration of adult health and social care functions, while providing local flexibility to integrate further for other specified functions of Local Authorities.

Section 1(5) of the Public Bodies (Joint Working) (Scotland) Act 2014 introduces Part 1 of the schedule, which sets out the functions of Local Authorities that may be delegated.

Section 1(7) of the Public Bodies (Joint Working) (Scotland) Act 2014 allows Scottish Ministers to prescribe in Regulations those functions that must be delegated by a Local Authority, as they relate to specific services for adults. These Regulations sets out those functions.

3. Prescribed functions that must or may be delegated by Health Boards
Section 1(6) &1(8) of the Public Bodies (Joint Working) (Scotland) Act 2014

The Public Bodies (Joint Working) (Scotland) Act 2014 requires Local Authorities and Health Boards to enter into an Integration Scheme, which provides the basis for Health Boards and Local Authorities to plan integrated arrangements for the delivery of adult health and social care services.

Section 1(8) of the Public Bodies (Joint Working) (Scotland) Act 2014 allows the functions of a Health Board that must be delegated under an Integration Scheme to be prescribed within Regulations.

Section 1(6) of the Public Bodies (Joint Working) (Scotland) Act 2014 allows the functions of a Health Board that may be delegated under an Integration Scheme to be prescribed within Regulations.

These Regulations sets out the functions of a Health Board that must be delegated and the functions of a Health Board that may be delegated under an Integration Scheme.
4. Prescribed National Health and Wellbeing Outcomes
Section 5(1) of the Public Bodies (Joint Working) (Scotland) Act 2014

Section 5(1) of the Public Bodies (Joint Working) (Scotland) Act 2014 allows Scottish Ministers to prescribe National Health and Wellbeing Outcomes.

National Health and Wellbeing Outcomes are high-level statements of purpose which apply to the planning, delivery, review and inspection of the arrangements that are made for the integration of health and social care services. They aim to achieve the improvement in the lives of patients and services users and the quality of service users.

These Regulations set out the nine National Health and Wellbeing Outcomes prescribed under Section 5(1) of the Act.

5. Interpretation of what is meant by health and social care professionals
Section 68(1) of the Public Bodies (Joint Working) (Scotland) Act 2014

Section 68(1) of the Public Bodies (Joint Working) (Scotland) Act 2014 provides definitions of key terms, which assist with interpretation of the Act. Under this section, the terms "health professionals" and "social care professionals" are defined as including such groups of persons, engaged in the provision of health and social care respectively, as Scottish Ministers prescribe. These Regulations contain prescribed descriptions of persons who, for the purposes of the Act, are to be within the meaning of the terms health professionals and social care professionals.

Sections 5, 12, 16 and 51 require health professionals and social care professionals to be consulted in relation to the National Health and Wellbeing Outcomes and in relation to any proposed staff transfers to take place under the powers in the Act.

This Regulation sets out the individuals, or groups, that Scottish Ministers consider to be representative of health professionals and social care professionals and who should therefore be included in any such consultation.

6. Prescribed functions conferred on a Local Authority officer
Section 23(1) of the Public Bodies (Joint Working) (Scotland) Act 2014

The policy intention set out within the Public Bodies (Joint Working) (Scotland) Act 2014 is to achieve the integration of adult health and social care functions, while providing local flexibility to integrate further for other specified Local Authority functions. The Act states that Scottish Ministers may, by Regulation, prescribe those functions which Local Authorities must delegate under an Integration Scheme.

There are a range of functions, conferred by, or under, the Adult Support and Protection (Scotland) Act 2007 on, specified persons who can be authorised to perform the functions of a "council officer". These relate to functions of Local Authorities which will require to be delegated.
These Regulations, arising from Section 23(1) of the Act enable functions of a “council officer” to be exercised by suitably qualified employees from any of the bodies which prepared the Integration Scheme.

This Regulation sets out which functions, conferred on an officer of a Local Authority, are prescribed.

Consultation is an essential and important aspect of Scottish Government working methods. Given the wide-ranging areas of work of the Scottish Government, there are many varied types of consultation. However, in general, Scottish Government consultation exercises aim to provide opportunities for all those who wish to express their opinions on a proposed area of work to do so in ways which will inform and enhance that work.

The Scottish Government encourages consultation that is thorough, effective and appropriate to the issue under consideration and the nature of the target audience. Consultation exercises take account of a wide range of factors, and no two exercises are likely to be the same.

Typically Scottish Government consultations involve a written paper inviting answers to specific questions or more general views about the material presented. Written papers are distributed to organisations and individuals with an interest in the issue, and they are also placed on the Scottish Government web site enabling a wider audience to access the paper and submit their responses. Consultation exercises may also involve seeking views in a number of different ways, such as through public meetings, focus groups or questionnaire exercises. Copies of all the written responses received to a consultation exercise (except those where the individual or organisation requested confidentiality) are placed in the Scottish Government Library at Saughton House, Edinburgh (K Spur, Saughton House, Broomhouse Drive, Edinburgh, EH11 3XD, telephone 0131 244 4565).

All Scottish Government consultation papers and related publications (eg, analysis of response reports) can be accessed at: Scottish Government consultations (http://www.scotland.gov.uk/consultations).

The views and suggestions detailed in consultation responses are analysed and used as part of the decision making process, along with a range of other available information and evidence. Depending on the nature of the consultation exercise the responses received may:

• Indicate the need for policy development or review
• Inform the development of a particular policy
• Help decisions to be made between alternative policy proposals
• Be used to finalise legislation before it is implemented.

Final decisions on the issues under consideration will also take account of a range of other factors, including other available information and research evidence.

While details of particular circumstances described in a response to a consultation exercise may usefully inform the policy process, consultation exercises cannot address individual concerns and comments, which should be directed to the relevant public body.

EXPLANATORY NOTE
(This note is not part of the Regulations)

These Regulations prescribe matters, and information about those matters, that must be included in an integration scheme (a “scheme”) prepared under section 1(2), 2(3) or 2(4) of the Public Bodies (Joint Working) Scotland Act 2014.

Article 2, together with the schedule, sets out the requirement to include the prescribed information about the prescribed matters in a scheme. Column A of the schedule sets out the prescribed matters that must be included in the scheme, and Column B sets out the prescribed information that the scheme must include. Column A makes provision for certain matters to be prescribed only when they are relevant to the other content of the integration scheme, in particular the integration model that the parties have chosen to use, as set out in the scheme.

Article 3 sets out that the prescribed information included in the scheme must be such information as has been agreed between the Health Board and local authority preparing the scheme.

Article 4, in exercise of the powers in section 20 of the Public Bodies (Joint Working) Scotland Act 2014, sets out that the effect of prescribed information being included in the scheme is to require the Health Board and local authority who prepare the scheme, and the integration joint board or as the case may be integration joint monitoring committee established in pursuance of the scheme, to act in accordance with the provisions of the scheme.

ANNEX 2(A)

PROPOSALS FOR PRESCRIBED FUNCTIONS THAT MUST BE DELEGATED BY LOCAL AUTHORITIES RELATING TO THE PUBLIC BODIES (JOINT WORKING) (SCOTLAND) ACT 2014 (Section 1(7))

CONSULTATION PAPER

Section 1(7) of the Public Bodies (Joint Working) (Scotland) Act 2014 provides for Scottish Ministers to prescribe in Regulations the functions of a Local Authority which must be delegated to the Integration Authority.

The Act restricts the range of Local Authority functions that can be delegated. The range of functions which may be delegated (and which, broadly, relate to social care) is set out in the schedule in the Act.

The Act confers a power on Scottish Ministers’ to require the delegation of certain functions insofar as they relate to persons of at least 18 years old. Scottish Ministers may prescribe, in regulations, the functions that must be delegated. Only functions which are included in the schedule to the Act may be prescribed.

The legal framework that confers “social care” functions on Local Authorities can be found across a wide range of legislation. These functions are considered by Scottish Ministers to be key to the establishment and promotion of a comprehensive and integrated health and social care service across Scotland.

Local Authorities, with partner organisations, purchase and provide a wide range of social work and social care services in order to carry out their legal functions. These services include services to children, young people, adults and families, promoting empowerment, independence, safety and protection. Services are provided for people of all ages, and their carers, who have a range of care and support needs. Across all care groups, while some individuals receive a service voluntarily, others will have social work involvement as a result of statutory responsibilities.

Social work and social care services support some of the most vulnerable people in our society. These services aim to be person centred and community based, with the purpose of promoting and improving, independence and social inclusion. Services which are aimed at increasing an individual’s quality of life, self-care and resilience, and at mitigating the effects of poverty, illness and disability also seek to prevent the inappropriate use of more intensive services.
The draft Regulations include those functions listed in the Schedule of the Act as they relate to the following services for adults:

- Social work services for adults and older people;
- Services and support for adults with physical disabilities, learning disabilities;
- Mental health services;
- Drug and alcohol services;
- Adult protection and domestic abuse
- Carers support services;
- Community care assessment teams;
- Support services;
- Care home services;
- Adult placement services;
- Health improvement services;
- Housing support services, aids and adaptations;
- Day services;
- Local area co-ordination;
- Respite provision;
- Occupational therapy services;
- Re-ablement services, equipment and telecare.

These Regulations prescribe certain functions of local authorities for the purpose of section 1(7) of the Public Bodies (Joint Working) (Scotland) Act 2014 (“the 2014 Act”).

The 2014 Act requires Health Boards and local authorities to agree arrangements for joint working in their area in relation to certain of their statutory functions. This will have the effect that adult health and social care services are provided, in all local authority areas, in a way which is integrated from the point of view of a person using those services. These joint working arrangements will involve the delegation of functions by a local authority, or by the Health Board, or both. Where a local authority is to delegate functions it must delegate the prescribed functions and may also delegate additional functions as provided for by the 2014 Act.

Regulation 2 introduces the schedule to the Regulations, column A of which contains a list of the enactments which confer prescribed functions. Regulation 3 describes the effect of the limitations on the prescription of certain functions which are set out in column B of the schedule.

The functions prescribed by virtue of these Regulations may be broadly described as relating to social care services provided by local authorities. The effect of prescribing these functions is that in every local authority area in Scotland, the statutory functions relating to adult social care services will be held by the same body as holds statutory functions relating to adult primary and community health services.

The social care services that are provided under the prescribed functions include social work services for adults, including adults with physical disabilities or learning disabilities; social work services for older people, mental health services, drug and alcohol support services, adult protection services, housing support service and health improvement services.

PROPOSALS FOR PRESCRIBED FUNCTIONS THAT MUST BE DELEGATED BY LOCAL AUTHORITIES RELATING TO THE PUBLIC BODIES (JOINT WORKING) (SCOTLAND) ACT 2014

CONSULTATION PAPER

The proposed Regulations prescribe those functions of a Health Board that may be delegated under an Integration Scheme, and those functions of a Health Board that must be delegated under an Integration Scheme.

Schedule 1 sets out all healthcare functions that may be delegated.

The functions which must be delegated under an Integration Scheme are those functions listed in Schedule 1 but only to the extent that they are exercised in relation to healthcare services.

This approach takes account of the fact that healthcare functions are defined very broadly under legislation. By setting out which healthcare services must be included within the integrated arrangement, the regulations provide the specificity that Scottish Ministers believe is necessary to ensure that integration is delivered consistently and at appropriate scale across Scotland.

Healthcare services that must be integrated

These regulations set out that a Health Board must delegate all of its functions as they relate to adult primary and community health services, along with a proportion of hospital sector provision, to support whole system re-design in favour of preventative and anticipatory care in communities. This approach builds upon work in Community Health Partnerships (CHPs); all services already within the scope of CHP arrangements must be delegated to Integration Authorities.

A narrative description of the services listed in Schedule 2, i.e. the healthcare services that must be integrated, is provided in the table that accompanies this introduction, below.

Healthcare services that may be integrated

Healthcare functions in the “may” category include any adult services that do not fall within the “must” category, and children’s healthcare services (in each case, with the proviso that the service in question is not precluded from the integrated arrangement by the regulations).

Some aspects of healthcare functions need to be included in the “must” list in order to deliver the policy intention of integration, which nonetheless cannot readily be included for practical reasons. For example, non-cash limited expenditure on pharmaceutical services is not currently disaggregated below Health Board level. As a result, unless the Integration Authority is coterminous with the Health Board, it is not currently possible to identify the resources for these services that are used by local populations, and it would be unreasonable for these Regulations to require their delegation under an Integration Scheme. Similar challenges apply to General Dental Services and General Ophthalmic Services.

Where this is the case, we have included within the “must” list those services that can be disaggregated to individual Integration Authority areas, and which we believe should be part of the integrated arrangement. Services that cannot be disaggregated at this time are on the “may” list so that they may be included at local discretion when data allowing disaggregation becomes available in due course. In time, we anticipate that modifications to these aspects of the Regulations may be required, to keep pace with integration locally.

Healthcare services that may not be integrated

Those functions of a Health Board that are considered unsuitable for delegation under an Integration Scheme relate to matters such as the provision of regional and national health services, education and research facilities of Health Boards, and some specific duties such as the registration of health professionals.

Hospital functions and budgets, and operational delivery within hospitals

With specific reference to hospital functions and budgets that must be delegated to Integration Authorities, Scottish Ministers intend that Regulations should ensure that the following objectives are achieved:

- The emergency care pathway must be included within the scope of integrated strategic planning, as part of whole system redesign in favour of preventative and anticipatory care;

- It will be important to assure a single system vision for integrated strategic planning, built particularly around the needs of patients and service users with multimorbidity;

- It will be important to enable effective commissioning of acute services across different Integration Authorities within a single Health Board area, to facilitate effective, efficient deployment of NHS resources.

In terms of hospital provision, the focus is therefore on including unscheduled hospital care within the scope of integrated strategic planning, which is the responsibility of the Integration Authority. The approach requires that specialities that exhibit a predominance of unplanned bed day use for adults are included as a minimum.

In terms of operational management within hospitals for these services, the legislation provides flexibility for local decisions that are appropriate to local circumstances. While some aspects of hospital activity and expenditure must be included within integrated strategic planning, as noted above, it is our expectation that in many cases day-to-day operational management of hospital services will remain within Health Board hospital management arrangements, with close working arrangements in place between the Chief Officer and the hospital sector to assure congruence between operational delivery and services set out in the Strategic Plan.
This table lists services that must be included within the scope of integrated strategic planning, as part of whole system redesign in favour of preventative and anticipatory care in communities.

In each case, integration must include all adult provision; inclusion of children’s services in integrated arrangements is left to the discretion of local partners. Additional services covered by the list of functions that may be included in integration can, of course, also be delegated locally.

Note that, where “patient’s home” is referred to as a place where a service is delivered, this includes care homes.

EXPLANATORY NOTE
(This note is not part of the Order)

These Regulations prescribe certain functions of health boards for the purpose of section 1(6) and (8) of the Public Bodies (Joint Working) (Scotland) Act 2014 (“the 2014 Act”).

The 2014 Act requires Health Boards and local authorities to agree arrangements for joint working in their area in relation to certain of their statutory functions. This will have the effect that adult health and social care services are provided, in all local authority areas, in a way which is integrated from the point of view of a person using those services. These joint working arrangements will involve the delegation of functions by the local authority, or by the Health Board, or both.

These Regulations prescribe the functions which a Health Board must delegate to an integration authority (regulations 2(1), (2)), and the broader range of functions which a Health Board may delegate to an integration authority (regulation 2(1)).

The functions which a Health Board may delegate to an integration authority are listed in Schedule 1 (regulation 2(1)).

The functions which a Health Board must delegate to an integration are also those functions listed in Schedule 1 (regulation 2(1)), but only insofar as they are exercisable in relation to adults and the health care services listed in Schedule 2 (regulation 2(2)).

The statutory functions of Health Boards are very broad and each may be capable of covering a wide range of health services. The extent to which Health Boards must delegate these functions can be most clearly prescribed by reference to the services listed in Schedule 2. The listed services encompass primary and community services which must be delegated by Health Boards in respect of adults.

Integration Authorities will have responsibility for the planning and resourcing of a significant proportion of health and social care services across Scotland. It is important that each Integration Authority has a consistent framework against which to plan, report and account for its activities so that the Integration Authority, the Health Board and Local Authority, Scottish Ministers and the public can assess progress made to improve outcomes locally and in different parts of the country.

An outcomes based approach encourages us all to focus on the difference that we make and not just on the inputs or processes over which we have control. The national outcomes for health and wellbeing under the Act need to strike a balance between national prescription and local flexibility. Moving to an outcome-based approach for health and social care will require a shift in culture and practice.

The health and wellbeing outcomes must therefore reflect the experience of people who use services and people in the workforce who are involved in planning and delivering person-centred care.

Scottish Ministers recognise that there must be a clear understanding of the purpose of each outcome, and each national outcome, and its relevant indicators, will be explained and expanded upon in guidance. Measurement of each national health and wellbeing outcome will rely on nationally gathered data to ensure consistency of definition and collection methodology. Indicators in support of the national outcomes are in development.

An outcomes working group of key stakeholders, including the third sector and service-user and carer organisations, and jointly chaired by a Community Health Partnership Director and Social Work Director is established. It was established to develop outcomes relating to health and social care, and associated indicators for tracking progress towards them. The Group has been working with Scottish Government officials to develop the draft outcomes.

The nine draft National Health and Wellbeing Outcomes, including a description of each outcome, is as follows:

Outcome 1: People are able to look after and improve their own health and wellbeing and live in good health for longer.

Policy Background: Integrated health and social care services must be planned for, and delivered, in person-centred ways that enable and support people to look after and improve their own health and wellbeing.

Our aim is to promote action to support a Scotland where people have the information, means, motivation, and opportunity to make the most of their genetic inheritance and to live a healthy life for as long as possible. Integrated health and social care services can influence this by the provision of appropriate information, and by working with individuals to identify how the assets the individual has, or can access in their local family/community, could support people to make those changes to happen.

Outcome 2: People, including those with disabilities, long term conditions, or who are frail, are able to live, as far as reasonably practicable, independently and at home or in a homely setting in their community.

Policy Background: Successful integration of health and social care services will provide for more people to be cared for and supported at home or in a homely setting. This outcome aims to ensure delivery of community based services, with a focus on prevention and anticipatory care, to mitigate against inappropriate admission to hospital or long term care settings. It recognises that independent living is key to improving health and wellbeing, and responds to Scottish Ministers’ commitment to support the reshaping of services to better care for and support the increasing number of people with complex needs in Scotland.

Outcome 3. People who use health and social care services have positive experiences of those services, and have their dignity respected.

Policy Background: It is important that health and social care services take full account of the needs and aspirations of the people who use services. Person centred planning and delivery of services will ensure that people receive the right service at the right time, in the right place, and services are planned for and delivered for the benefit of people who use the service. For people who use care and support services, their experience of those services should be positive, and should be delivered for the person rather than to the person.

Outcome 4. Health and social care services are centred on helping to maintain or improve the quality of life of service users.

Policy Background: There is unwarranted variation and inconsistency in the quality of care and support for people across Scotland. Everyone should receive the same quality of service no matter where they live. It is therefore important that we continue to improve the quality of our care services and address inconsistencies. This national health and wellbeing outcome provides for an on-going focus on continuous improvement in relation to health and social care services.

Outcome 5. Health and social care services contribute to reducing health inequalities.

Policy Background: Health inequalities can be described as the unjust differences in health which occur between groups occupying different positions in society. Health inequalities can occur by gender, income, social class, deprivation, educational status, ethnicity and geography and are the result of systematic and socially modifiable difference, not random variation. This outcome reflects the contributory role that health and social care services have in addressing health inequalities.

Outcome 6. People who provide unpaid care are supported to reduce the potential impact of their caring role on their own health and well-being.

Policy Background: Scottish Ministers recognise the key role played by unpaid carers. This outcome reflects the importance of ensuring that health and social care services are planned and delivered with a strong focus on the wellbeing of unpaid carers.

Outcome 7. People who use health and social care services are safe from harm.
Policy Background: In carrying out their responsibilities under this Act, Health Boards, Local Authorities and Integration Authorities must ensure that the planning and provision of health and social care services protects people from harm.

Outcome 8. People who work in health and social care services are supported to continuously improve the information, support, care and treatment they provide and feel engaged with the work they do.

Policy Background: It is important that the people who work in health and social care services are supported to carry out their vitally important role to a high standard, and that they feel engaged with the work they do and the people for whom they care, in order to improve the care for, and experience of service users.

Outcome 9. Resources are used effectively in the provision of health and social care services, without waste.

Policy Background: Scottish Ministers intend that health and social care services should be integrated from the perspective of the person receiving care. A key policy driver for integration is the growing population of people with multiple complex needs, many – though not all – of whom are older people. Preventative and anticipatory care can play a particularly important role in achieving better outcomes for people with multiple complex needs, helping to avoid or delay admission to institutional care settings and enabling people to stay in their own homes and communities for as long as possible. If people’s needs are not anticipated, and opportunities to prevent the need for institutional care are not met, people can find themselves in institutional care too early, and for too long. Not only does this situation represent a poor outcome for the person, it is also a poor use of resources that could be better deployed on other forms of care, for that person and the wider community. Health and social care services must therefore be planned for, and delivered, in ways that make best use of available resource while at the same time optimising outcomes for patients and service users. These considerations must be taken account of by Integration Authorities in fulfilling their legal duty to achieve best value.

These Regulations prescribe these nine National Health and Wellbeing Outcomes under the power conferred by Section 5(1) of the Act.

EXPLANATORY NOTE
(This note is not part of the Regulations)

These Regulations prescribe national health and wellbeing outcomes (“the outcomes”) which apply in relation to the Public Bodies (Joint Working) (Scotland) Act 2014 (“the 2014 Act”). The schedule to these Regulations sets out the outcomes.

The 2014 Act requires Health Boards and local authorities to agree arrangements for joint working in their area in relation to certain of their statutory functions. This will have the effect that adult health and social care services are provided, in all local authority areas, in a way which is integrated from the point of view of a person using those services.

The 2014 Act makes the following provisions as to the effect of the outcomes in the context of integrated arrangements for adult health and social care:

- The local authority and Health Board are required to have regard to the outcomes when preparing the integration scheme (section 3(2));
- The outcomes are relevant to consideration of the circumstances when an order under section 27(6) may be made (section 27(7));
- The strategic plan prepared by an integration authority must set out how arrangements for the delivery of integration functions are intended to contribute to achieving the outcomes (s29(2)(b));
- The integration authority is required to have regard to the outcomes when preparing or reviewing the strategic plan (section 30(2)(b) and section 37(2)(a)(ii));
- An integration joint board’s constituent authorities can jointly require the strategic plan to be replaced if it prevents or is likely to prevent either of them from carrying out their functions in a way which contributed to achieving the outcomes (section 38(2));
- The persons carrying out integration functions must have regard to the outcomes (section 40(b)); and
- Healthcare Improvement Scotland and Social Care & Social Work Improvement Scotland are able to inspect health and social care services for the purpose of reviewing and evaluating how the planning and provision of services is contributing to the achievement of the outcomes. Alongside this they are able to encourage improvements and make recommendations in relation to the implementation of strategic plans in order to contribute to achieving the outcomes (sections 54 and 55).

The outcomes apply to all integration authorities, and to all persons carrying out integration functions. By reference to the outcomes, the effect of integrated health and care services on the health and wellbeing of individuals can be measured. As the outcomes apply nationally, their application will provide for the reduction of unwarranted variation in the quality of health and care services between geographical areas.

EXPLANATORY NOTE
(This note is not part of the Regulations)

These Regulations prescribe descriptions of persons who, for the purposes of the Public Bodies (Joint Working) (Scotland) Act 2014 (“the 2014 Act”), are within the definition of “health professionals” or “social care professionals”.

Article 2 sets out prescribed descriptions of health professionals. The effect of this is that persons registered with a range of regulatory bodies covering the medical and nursing professions, allied health professions and other health services such as optometry, pharmacy and dentistry will be treated as “health professionals” for the purposes of (“the 2014 Act”).

Article 3 sets out prescribed descriptions of social care professionals. In contrast with health professionals, there is a single regulatory body for social service workers (including social workers) in Scotland, the Scottish Social Services Council (“SSSC”). Paragraph (a) provides that persons who are registered with the SSSC are a prescribed description of social care professional for the purposes of the 2014 Act. Paragraph (b) provides that persons working in social care, but who are exempt from registration with the SSSC, are also a prescribed description of social care professional. This exemption applies to persons who are regulated by another professional body as set out in the Regulation of Care (Social Service Workers) (Scotland) Order 2005. Paragraph (c) describes other types of social care worker, who are directly involved in the provision of care or support to service users, but who are not regulated by the SSSC.

CONSULTATION QUESTIONS

1. Do you agree that the groups listed in section 2 of the draft regulations prescribe what ‘health professional’ means for the purposes of the Act?

Yes [ ]

No  [ ]

2. If you answered ‘no’, please explain why:

3. Do you agree that identifying Social Workers and Social Service Workers through registration with the Scottish Social Services Commission is the most appropriate way of defining Social Care Professionals, for the purposes of the Act?

Yes [ ]

No  [ ]

4. If you answered ‘no’, what other methods of identifying professional would you see as appropriate?

5. Are there any further comments you would like to offer on these draft Regulations?
Section 1 of the Public Bodies (Joint Working) (Scotland) Act 2014 provides for Regulations to prescribe any function of a Local Authority as a function which must be delegated to the Integration Authority.

The Act restricts the range of Local Authority functions that can be delegated to Integration Authorities to specific “social care” functions. This is set out in the Schedule in the Act.

The Act also restricts Scottish Ministers’ powers in prescribing Local Authority social care functions, so that Scottish Ministers can only require the delegation of social care functions insofar as they relate to adults. For the purposes of the Regulations the age limit of 18 is being used to define “adults”.

Under section 1(7) of the Act, Scottish Ministers may, by Regulations, prescribe those functions which Local Authorities must delegate under an Integration Scheme.

The legal framework which confers “social care” functions on Local Authorities can be found across a wide range of Scottish legislation. These functions are considered key to the establishment and promotion of a comprehensive and integrated health and social care service across Scotland.

Social work and social care services support some of the most vulnerable people in our society. These services aim to be person centred and community based, with the purpose of promoting and improving, independence and social inclusion. Services which are aimed at increasing an individual’s quality of life, self-care and resilience, mitigating the effects of poverty, illness and disability also seek to prevent the inappropriate use of more intensive services.

A number of functions relating to the Adult Support and Protection (Scotland) Act 2007, that must be delegated are restricted to specified persons before they can be authorised to perform the functions of a “council officer”.

These Regulations set out which functions conferred on an officer of a Local Authority are prescribed for the purposes of section 23(1)(a) of the Public Bodies (Joint Working) (Scotland) Act 2014.

(a) 2014 ASP 9. Section 68 contains a definition of “prescribed” relevant to the exercise of the statutory powers under which these Regulations are made.

(b) S.S.I. 2008/306. Article 3 was amended by the Health and Social Act 2012 (Consequential Provision – Social Workers) Order 2012/1479 Schedule 1(1) paragraph 58.
EXPLANATORY NOTE
(This note is not part of the Regulations)

These Regulations prescribe certain functions of officers of local authorities for the purpose of section 23 of the Public Bodies (Joint Working) (Scotland) Act 2014 (“The 2014 Act”).

The 2014 Act requires Health Boards and local authorities to agree arrangements for joint working in their area in relation to certain of their statutory functions. Section 23 of the 2014 Act makes provision to allow certain prescribed functions, in the context of these joint working arrangements, to be exercised by persons other than the persons on whom the functions are directly conferred.

Regulation 2 sets out the functions which are prescribed for the purpose of section 23 of the 2014 Act. These are functions which, in respects of a local authority area, are conferred directly on an officer of that local authority. The effect of regulation 2(1) is that a person who is an officer of the Health Board (or any other local authority) with which a local authority has made joint working arrangements under the 2014 Act may exercise those functions in respect of the area of that local authority providing that the condition in regulation 3 is satisfied.

Regulation 3 sets out a prescribed condition for the application of section 23 of the 2014 Act to the prescribed functions. A person who is not an officer of a local authority may only exercise the prescribed functions for the area of that local authority if the person meets the criteria set out in the Adult Support and Protection (Scotland) Act 2007 (Restriction on the Authorisation of Council Officers) Order 2008 which are relevant to the function in question.
