MARINE (SCOTLAND) ACT 2010, PART 6 Conservation of Seals

Licence to shoot seals to protect the health and welfare of farmed fish in Scotland or Licence to shoot seals to prevent serious damage to fisheries in Scotland

Dear Licence holder,

This is a SECOND reminder that the first quarterly period ended on 30th April 2018 and the return is now overdue for the period 01 Feb 2018 to 30 April 2018.

Due to our online seal survey undergoing maintenance works and continuing to be offline you will not be able to submit returns via the online system.

Therefore you must complete the attached spread sheet and submit it to seal.licensing@gov.scot.

If your licence is valid for any part of this reporting period but you have not shot any seals, you must still submit a return to confirm.

If your licence validity dates fall out with this period no return will be required.

Returns must be submitted to Marine Scotland as soon as possible.

Please note this must be done for all licences including those for which 48 hour returns have already been submitted and those where no seals have been shot.

Seal Licensing Team.

Dear [Redacted]

Please find our Q1 return attached. Apologies for the delay – I missed the reminder whilst on honeymoon and I'm still catching up on things.

Best regards,

MARINE (SCOTLAND) ACT 2010, PART 6 Conservation of Seals

Licence to shoot seals to protect the health and welfare of farmed fish in Scotland or
Licence to shoot seals to prevent serious damage to fisheries in Scotland

Dear [Redacted]

This is a reminder that the first quarterly period ended on 30th April 2018 and the return is now overdue for the period 01 Feb 2018 to 30 April 2018.

Due to our online seal survey undergoing maintenance works and continuing to be offline you will not be able to submit returns via the online system.

Therefore you must complete the attached spread sheet and submit it to seal.licensing@gov.scot.

If your licence is valid for any part of this reporting period but you have not shot any seals, you must still submit a return to confirm.

If your licence validity dates fall out with this period no return will be required.

Returns must be submitted to Marine Scotland as soon as possible.

Please note this must be done for all licences including those for which 48 hour returns have already been submitted and those where no seals have been shot.

This notice applies to all seal licences issued with a date of commencement on or after 01 Feb 2018.

Kind Regards,
Seal Licensing Team
