CALL FOR TRANSPARENCY OVER SALMOND-STURGEON MEETINGS

Scottish Labour has called for transparency from the Scottish government over meetings between First Minister, Nicola Sturgeon, and her predecessor Alex Salmond during an investigation over allegations of sexual assault against Mr Salmond.

It is understood Alex Salmond and Nicola Sturgeon met on several occasions to discuss the case. Labour has said the government should publish:

- The times and dates of these meetings
- Any minutes from them
- Clarification if Mr Salmond asked the First Minister to interfere in the investigation in anyway.

Labour is also reiterating calls for Alex Salmond to be suspended from the SNP immediately.

Scottish Labour Parliamentary Business Manager and Women's spokesperson, Rhoda Grant MSP, said: "The people of Scotland expect full transparency in this case.

"It is understood that Alex Salmond met the First Minister on multiple occasions to discuss the investigation into allegations of sexual assault into him. It would be completely unacceptable if the details of those meetings remained unknown.

"The allegations against Alex Salmond are incredibly serious. His meetings with the head of a government that was investigating him must not be kept under wraps.

"Nicola Sturgeon must publish the details and minutes of these meetings as soon as possible. "The SNP must also do all it can to give complainants the support they need, whoever the alleged perpetrator is, and make clear that there is safe space for any other survivors to come forward. "Meanwhile, Nicola Sturgeon should finally suspend Alex Salmond from the SNP immediately."
