COMMERCIAL PEAT EXTRACTION SITES IN SCOTLAND

You may recall that in my letter of 6 November 2019 I indicated that I would be writing to you again to seek your assistance on improving our understanding around commercial peat extraction in Scotland

The Scottish Government recognises the important role peatlands play in responding to the global climate emergency and its ability to lock away carbon. This information request stems from the Scottish Government's Programme for Government commitment to seek to phase out the use of horticultural peat, and we wish to gain an overall picture of the scale of commercial peat extraction in Scotland at this time. Specifically, we wish to understand the current volume of peat extraction and timescales around when planning permission is due to expire.

I appreciate that information pertaining to planning consent for commercial peat extraction is likely to, in certain cases, date back quite some time. Nevertheless, I would be grateful for your support in completing a short survey, as far as possible, for each site within your planning authority.

Based on information from BRITPITS, produced by British Geological Survey, we have identified sites across Scotland related to peat extraction along with what we understand to be the current status of those sites. (See Annex A).

For those authorities with sites identified in Annex A, I would be grateful if you could complete the survey in Annex B for each relevant site. In addition, if you are aware of any other peat extraction sites in your area, that are not listed, you are asked to complete the survey for each of these sites too.

If there are no sites listed for your authority, you are asked to email, using the email address below, to confirm there are no commercial peat extraction sites within your area.

If you have any questions relating to this request or want to make a completed return please email William Carlin or call on 0131 244 5094 to discuss. I would be grateful if this information could be returned by 15 April 2020.

Yours sincerely

Chief Planner
