

After reading your document and the various case studies I now have a better understanding of the range and complexities of the bullying issue. What is also very clear to me is the fact that you can have no real idea, of the magnitude of the problem since there is no unified and consistent approach to recording.

I requested stats on bullying for a full term for both high schools and was told that [Redacted] recorded [Redacted] incidents and [Redacted] recorded [Redacted] incidents. For schools with 500+ pupils I do not believe that these are creditable figures.
