

FOI 202400395815 – Documents for Release

Requested information (excerpt)

1. Can you please provide all correspondences to/from Humza Yousaf relating to invitations to a Global Ethical Finance Forum (GEFF) in September 2015 which were sent out in May 2015 to a number of distinguished and/or influential leaders. I would like to understand how the list of attendees was decided upon and also why the Scottish Government sent the invitations and hosted the dinner because this was organised by the Islamic Finance Council UK (IFC) who were heavily funded by Scottish Government.
 2. What remit does / did IFC UK have regarding developing ethical finance?
 3. What responses were received from each of the invitees and who actually attended the dinner. Were any other VIPs sent invitations by Humza Yousaf other than those listed below?
 4. Was any guidance sought or received from the FCDO regarding the invitation of fairly influential people to this Forum
 5. What was the cost to the Scottish Government for hosting the dinner and what budgets was it paid from?
 6. Any correspondences between Humza Yousaf and the First Minister regarding the sending of the invitations and the hosting of the dinner.
- The invitations which have been shared in a prior FOI response 202400395815 include those to :

Invitation to participate in the Global Ethical Finance Forum 2015

It is my distinct pleasure to personally invite you to the 1st Global Ethical Finance Forum (GEFF) on the 1st and 2nd of September 2015. The event has been timed to complement the launch of the Responsible Finance Institute (RFI) on the 31st

August 2015 and Thomson Reuters' Responsible Finance Report on the 2nd of September 2015. We are delighted these events are being held in Scotland at the prestigious Balmoral Hotel in Edinburgh and I would like to extend our invitation for you to join me for a civic reception to be held in the Great Hall of Edinburgh Castle on the evening of the 2nd September 2015.

Following the global financial crisis, there has been an increased recognition that ethics and business are central to the attainment of sustainable and inclusive economic growth. This idea has been at the heart of the socially responsible finance movement and the GEF will offer a unique forum for the progression of this agenda.

Scotland's heritage highlights our significant contribution to the broader ethical finance movement via the growth of the savings bank, mutual life companies and indeed the work of moral philosopher and economist Adam Smith. Accordingly I welcome the organisers, and their partners, the Islamic Finance Council UK (IFC), decision to host the GEF 2015 in Scotland. The IFC Edinburgh roundtable series have highlighted that real synergies exist between Islamic and ethical finance and the RFI very aptly aims to connect these areas by bringing together a broad range of stakeholders to address the scope for convergence around 'fairer' and socially responsible finance.

In line with our commitment to develop ethical finance, the Scottish Government looks forward to welcoming you to Edinburgh. My colleague John Swinney MSP Deputy First Minister and Cabinet Secretary for Finance, Constitution and Economy will join you at the RFI launch and I will be hosting the reception in Edinburgh Castle, one of Scotland's most iconic buildings. Furthermore, for our WIPs, we will host a relaxing and enjoyable tour which will provide you with an opportunity to see more of our beautiful country on the 31st August.

The organisers will further communicate the specific details of your speech.

We hope that you will join us and share your insights in this effort to foster global collaboration among various areas of responsible finance towards creating a fairer society.

Following the global financial crisis, there has been an increased recognition that ethics and business are central to the attainment of sustainable and inclusive economic growth. This idea has been at the heart of the socially responsible finance movement and the GEF will offer a unique forum for the progression of this agenda.

Scotland's heritage highlights our significant contribution to the broader ethical finance movement via the growth of the savings bank, mutual life companies and indeed the work of moral philosopher and economist Adam Smith. Accordingly I welcome the organisers, and their partners, the Islamic Finance Council UK (IFC), decision to host the GEF 2015 in Scotland. The IFC Edinburgh roundtable series have highlighted that real synergies exist between Islamic and ethical finance and the RFI very aptly aims to connect these areas by bringing together a broad range of stakeholders to address the scope for convergence around 'fairer' and socially responsible finance.

In line with our commitment to develop ethical finance, the Scottish Government looks forward to welcoming you to Edinburgh. My colleague John Swinney MSP Deputy First Minister and Cabinet Secretary for Finance, Constitution and Economy will join you at the RFI launch and I will be hosting the reception in Edinburgh Castle, one of Scotland's most iconic buildings. Furthermore, for Your Excellency and other WIPs, we will host a relaxing and enjoyable tour which will provide you with an opportunity to see more of our beautiful country on the 31st August.

Invitation to participate in the Global Ethical Finance Forum 2015

It is my distinct pleasure to personally invite you to the 1st Global Ethical Finance Forum (GEFF) on the 1st and 2nd of September 2015. The event has been timed to complement the launch of the Responsible Finance Institute (RFI) on the 31st August 2015 and Thomson Reuters' Responsible Finance Report on the 2nd of September 2015. We are delighted these events are being held in Scotland at the prestigious Balmoral Hotel in Edinburgh and I would like to extend our invitation for you to join me for a civic reception to be held in the Great Hall of Edinburgh Castle on the evening of the 2nd September 2015.
