

Take-Up of Scottish Benefits

Easy Read

Contents Page

| Chapter | Page Number |
|--|--------------------|
| Benefits in Scotland | 3 |
| What is take-up? | 4 |
| What is the Scottish Government doing to improve take-up? | 10 |
| Further information | 12 |

Benefits in Scotland

Benefits are paid to people who need more money. The Scottish Government has set up a new benefits system for people in Scotland.

Social Security Scotland has been set up to run this new benefits system. They will pay benefits for disabled people and their carers. These used to be paid by the Department for Work and Pensions (DWP), part of the UK Government.

Social Security Scotland is also paying brand new benefits. These are for people:

- with not much money
- with children
- who care for others

The Scottish Government wants to make sure people have a good experience using the benefits system.

What is take-up?

You must apply for a benefit to get it.

Some people do not apply for the benefits they could get. This could be because:

- they do not know about the benefit

- they find applying for the benefit too difficult or stressful

- they feel bad about claiming benefits

The Scottish Government wants everyone to get the benefits they can.

By law, the Scottish Government must work hard to make sure everyone gets the benefits they are eligible for.

You are eligible for a benefit if you meet certain rules. These rules describe who should get the benefit. For example, a rule could be that you must care for someone.

A take-up rate shows if people are claiming the benefits they are eligible for. A take-up rate compares:

- how many people get the benefits they are eligible for

- how many people do not get the benefits they are eligible for

A high take-up rate means lots of people get the benefits they are eligible for.

A low take-up rate means not many people get the benefits they are eligible for.

The Scottish Government has worked out the take-up rate for eight benefits.

Scottish Child Payment

A regular payment for families who don't have much money but have children.

In 2022, around 9 in 10 people eligible for the benefit, with a child aged 6 or under, got it.

Pregnancy and Baby Payment

A one-off payment for families who don't have much money but have a baby.

In 2021, around 8 in 10 people eligible for the benefit got it.

Early Learning Payment

A one-off payment for families who don't have much money but have a child around nursery age.

In 2020, around 8 in 10 people eligible for the benefit got it.

School Age Payment

A one-off payment for families who don't have much money but have a child around five years old.

In 2022, around 9 in 10 people eligible for the benefit got it.

Best Start Foods

A regular payment for families who don't have much money but have young children. Helps with food costs.

In 2022, around 9 in 10 people eligible for the benefit got it.

Funeral Support Payment

A one-off payment to help people who don't have much money pay for a funeral.

In 2022, around 6 in 10 people eligible for the benefit got it.

Young Carer Grant

A one-off payment for young adults who care for someone.

In 2022, around 7 in 10 people eligible for the benefit got it.

Job Start Payment

A one-off payment for young adults starting a new job.

In 2022, around 1 in 10 people eligible for the benefit got it.

Example: Funeral Support Payment

In 2022, around 6 in 10 people eligible for Funeral Support Payment got it. This means that:

- for these 10 people eligible for Funeral Support Payment

- 6 people claimed the benefit

- but 4 people did not claim the benefit

What is the Scottish Government doing to improve take-up?

The Scottish Government has set up the Social Security Independent Advocacy Service for disabled people. This is free to use.

An advocate is a person who helps you apply for a benefit and makes sure your voice is heard.

Staff have spoken to over 2,000 people about their experience of the benefits system. This is helping the Scottish Government improve the benefits system.

Scottish benefits are being advertised in different ways, including:

- television
- radio
- newspapers
- social media
- posters
- special events
- in supermarkets

Social Security Scotland has created its local delivery service. Staff across Scotland can help you understand what benefits you are eligible for. They can also help you apply for benefits.

The Scottish Government is providing advice about benefits in different places. This includes GP practices.

The Scottish Government has placed welfare rights advisors in some GP surgeries.

A welfare rights advisor is a member of staff who can give you advice about money, housing and jobs.

The Scottish Government is making it as simple and easy as possible to apply for benefits.

Further information

There are lots of ways to learn more about the benefits system in Scotland. You can:

- Use the Scottish Government's website:

<https://www.mygov.scot/browse/benefits>

- Phone Social Security Scotland and speak to a member of staff. The phone number is:

0800 182 2222

- Write a letter and post it to Social Security Scotland. The postal address is:

Social Security Scotland
PO Box 10301
Dundee
DD1 9FY

- Use the free advocacy service. Tell Social Security Scotland you want help from the advocacy service when you contact them.